The signing of a Memorandum of Understanding on Tuesday, October 23, 2018, between Anguilla's Chief Minister, Mr. Victor Banks, and Mr. Luc Allary, of the Canadian Commercial Corporation (CCC), has moved the expansion of the Clayton J. Lloyd International Airport closer to reality.

Speaking at the event, Mr. Banks told media representatives: "We are here at a signing ceremony with the Canadian Commercial Corporation which is an agency of the Canadian Government involved in development support for territories, like ourselves, around the world. Mr. Luc Allary, who is the Principal involved in this exercise, is here to do the signing on behalf of the Canadian Commercial Corporation. He will be witnessed by Mr. Rupert Jones who is no stranger to many of us because he worked on the last airport as the Project Manager. He now works for a company called JV Driver. I will be signing on behalf of the Government of Anguilla, and my signature will be witnessed by none other than Mr. Curtis (Love) Richardson who is the Minister of Infrastructure and is very much involved - and has a passion for this project and its development."
